

COMMUNITY CALENDAR: SEPTEMBER EDITION #633

Updated: 9/10/2020

FALL/WINTER EXCLUSIVES

This section includes: Holiday events and other seasonal key dates

WHO: First Exposures

WHAT: New Mentee Application for Fall 2020

WHERE: Bay Area

WHEN: Program Starts September 12th, apply ASAP

CONTACT: More info and apply here

NOTES: First Exposures is an arts mentoring program, which offers free photography classes to young people in our community. Fall 2020 semester will be virtual, we are accepting applicants in and outside of the Bay Area. Students are 11 - 18 years old and want to learn how to do photography with the help of a mentor. While learning how to make art, the students in First Exposures also develop academic and life skills. Our goal is to provide art education to underserved youth from a variety of backgrounds including those who come from families who could not otherwise afford photography classes, are in the foster care system, and/or who are underserved by the larger community in some way. All accepted students will learn how to take photographs and exhibit them at the end of the year. Students are assigned experienced photography mentors who work with them at each session.

WHO: San Francisco Planning Department

WHAT: 2022 San Francisco Housing Element Update

WHERE: <https://www.sfhousingelement.org/>

WHEN: January 1, 2022

CONTACT: Kimia Haddadan, Senior Housing Policy Planner, Citywide Division, San Francisco Planning Department Kimia.haddadan@sfgov.org (415) 575-9068

NOTES: The Housing Element ensures that San Francisco will have enough capacity to produce the number of housing units by income level prescribed by the Bay Area Association of Governments (ABAG) through the Regional Housing Need Allocation (RHNA). State Law requires that the Housing Element address, remove, or mitigate governmental and non-governmental constraints to housing production. In addition, the Housing Element is required to include policies that serve to provide: equal housing opportunities for San Francisco residents, assist in the development of housing, improve and conserve existing housing stock, preserve units at-risk of conversion from affordable to market rate, The Housing Element relies on robust public outreach and engagement to develop the policies and implementation programs that express San Francisco's housing priorities over the next eight years. This extensive outreach is supplemented with data analysis of San Francisco's housing trends and pressing housing needs, a site inventory analysis, and an evaluation of the implementing programs from the previous Housing Element.

WHAT: Gala 2020

WHEN: September 13th, Sunday Evening at 5:30pm

CONTACT: <https://opendoorlegal.org/gala/>

NOTES: These past months have brought many of our city's problems to the surface: poverty, homelessness, racism, and more. But when COVID-19 ends, many of our city's most vulnerable residents will still be struggling. This year, the focus of Open Door Legal's gala is fighting displacement, and ensuring that low-income San Franciscans are able to stay in the city they hold so dear. I hope that you will join me and immerse yourself in stories of struggle, resilience, and compassion, directly from ODL's clients and staff. From housing to immigration to family law, join us as we work together, in one night, to keep at least 60 families in San Francisco. This gala will be online and completely free and open to all.

WHEN: September 15, 2020, from 12-1pm

CONTACT: Kimia Haddadan, Senior Housing Policy Planner, Citywide Division, San Francisco Planning Department, Kimia.haddadan@sfgov.org, (415) 575-9068

NOTES: The Housing Element ensures that San Francisco will have enough capacity to produce the number of housing units by income level prescribed by the Bay Area Association of Governments (ABAG) through the Regional Housing Need Allocation (RHNA). State Law requires that the Housing Element address, remove, or mitigate governmental and non-governmental constraints to housing production. In addition, the Housing Element is required to include policies that serve to provide: equal housing opportunities for San Francisco residents, assist in the development of housing, improve and conserve existing housing stock, preserve units at-risk of conversion from affordable to market rate. The Housing Element relies on robust public outreach and engagement to develop the policies and implementation programs that express San Francisco's housing priorities over the next eight years. This extensive outreach is supplemented with data analysis of San Francisco's housing trends and pressing housing needs, a site inventory analysis, and an evaluation of the implementing programs from the previous Housing Element.

WHO: 3rd Street Youth Center & Clinic and Park RX

WHAT: Fixed vs. Growth Mindset Virtual Workshop - Survey

WHEN: Submit your responses as soon as possible

CONTACT: Submit survey here

NOTES: Park Rx - the Park Prescription Program, proposes to foster a collaborative approach to improve health outcomes; while strengthening the connection between the community, healthcare system, parks and open public lands. Park Rx and 3rd Street Center and Clinic have created this workshop for Youth. With challenges from online-learning arising for our youth, we are hoping to help youth develop a growth mindset, to understand how this can help while online-learning, and create a safe space for you to ask questions if unfamiliar with this topic; while also adding a physical activity session, before having a fun team-building exercise where you will develop skills that can help you in your online learning classes or on your day-to-day life. In order for us to provide you with a great experience, we would like to know what day works best for you. Please complete this short survey, after getting enough responses we will choose the most popular option and we will send out an invitation for you to register to the workshop!
